Good morning

I apologize for the events that have come to pass. I'm currently going through a separation and was told this will be taken care of. I just emailed her lawyer to get them off their asses. Due to the separation I lost my job, my phone was under her name because she got discounted rates, and right before handing me a notice of no trespass, which she can't enforce, she emptied our joint account which my pay went into.

Again I apologize, I would have called earlier but with no phone it's hard to get stuff done. You can always reach me with no issue.

Oh one thing, just in case she doesn't pay, my accounts are locked right now because when she cut my phone my bank took it off of my account which locked me out of everything. Can I give a friend some money, and they can add financeit as a payee and pay the bill for me?
