and as mean, disrespectful, insulting, degrading, and more that you have been to me, when we have a fair signed offer ill help you look for your stuff. After all you have done to me since you started this separation, the audacity you have to ask for my help to find things just blows my mind. But i am being serious about the restitution in damages, your not even making an effort anymore to end this. Like do you want me to revise my offer and send it to you again? I have no issue doing that, but its hard when you do not give me any feedback on the offers i do send to you.

did you forget or something?

about your remark about how im trying to ruin your life... I'm not trying to ruin your life. I have physical evidence of you committing fraud and spousal abuse, if i wanted to ruin your life i would have already. im not the one trying to walk away with the entire house here, or the majority of it now. I want this to be done and over with, i just want to move on. like i have to make sure the living room is under chain and lock... you think I want to live like this? the faster this is done the faster I can go get a new job since I lost the one i had because of the position you put me in, it was still my decision in the end though. Anyways did you need more time to come up with another offer?

its been another week without a fair offer. just like last week you have till end of day monday to come up with one. Since your lawyer hasn't told you everything I will give you a couple of things to google, because you won't trust my definitions of them

resulting trust
and also look up how contracts do not hold up legally when the person you made sign was not of sound mind.

As you can see im not trying to ruin your life like you are to me because if i was looking to do that i wouldnt be so easy going and just go straight to court. if you were to get away with this, this would ruin me for 5+ years but you wont. Not to mention this has already affected my life, not just professionally but mentally as well. As i am pretty much in a prison of your making, your trying to take my % of the home when it isn't yours to take. and i trust you so little that i wont leave to make sure you dont steal my % of the home, and you said i would have gotten money? where is that in writing exactly? no where, i would have walked away with nothing. and to your remark of earlier that we still havent signed anything and that i shouldnt take anything..... your right... but yet your still taking items that are contested... every day almost for over 30 days. and im not trying to mouch a single thing off of you, i made more money than you before and if you want to cancel my phone, go for it cancel it. cancel everything. i never asked you to continue paying. you already canceled my insurance. you want to stop paying for our house? go for it, we destroyed my credit already. while trying to mentally heal, you tormented me day after day so bad i begged you to stop and sometimes before it even began. you affected my professional life, not just my personal life in such a negative way these last couple of years. I'm happy you broke up with me when you did, because if you waited another week you probably wouldnt have. and to show how badly you tormented me heres that audio file you said your phone couldn't load, i asked a friend if it loaded on their iphone, they said it did.

Everything - Wednesday at 6-24 p.m...m4a

I see that you changed the passcode on the front door..... Since you don't love here I'll be changing it. Seeing this I'll be asking for a leave of absence from work because while I've been sick I've noticed you have been here almost everyday. Waiting for me not to be here so you can change the locks probably. Also you used to yell at me for leaving the garbage bin out so I brought it in for you, I'll get some gas and do the grass myself so there's no reason for you to come back tomorrow or the next couple of days.

Dear Mr. Zanth,

Please be aware that my client cannot pay the bill for the windows until you contact the company and give them your authorization for her to deal with them. Forwarding the bills sent to you by the financing company does not accomplish this. You must actually communicate with them directly.

Should you have need of a pest exterminator, I would suggest that you hire one yourself or vacate the house so that my client can inspect and -- if necessary -- ensure that an exterminator attends to deal with any wildlife present.

Finally, I have sent a process server to deliver the attached documents. You have refused, on three occasions, to answer the door and accept service. Given your expressed desire to proceed to family court, I would have expected you to welcome these documents. As such, I have attached Form 6 - Acknowledgement of Service. Sign, date, and return the Acknowledgement to me and you will be able to complete and file the Answer (blank attached) so that you can inform the Court of your side of the story. Please note that if you do not return the Acknowledgement and I need to bring a motion for substitute service I will at the same time seek an Order that you cover my client's costs.

Sincerely,

M. Anne Vespry

I did not refuse to answer the door, i was either asleep or not home. You could have just given them to natashia to give to me, she comes over regularly and starts or tries to start fights with me. For example she came over today and tried to start a fight with me. I will go over these documents, fill them out and send them back to you.

after reviewing it, it might take me a day or two to fill it out since it was not filled out in good faith and have proof on some of the things that are claimed against me.

Dear Mr. Zanth,

As per the Rules of Family Court, service of an application cannot be made by the applicant themselves. So. No. I couldn't just give them to Natasha to give to you.
